Woman Own Attorney In Suit for Damages For Broken Suitcase

Suit for $1,000 damages for alleged negligence of the defendant in the handling of a suit case which the plaintiff avers was unfit for further use when it arrived at its destination.

has been filed in Fulton superior court by Mrs. Teresa A. Wartsbaugh against the Louisville & Nashville Railroad company and the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad company.

The petition was drawn and filed by the plaintiff in propria persona and attached to the paper was an affidavit and application for leave to prosecute as a poor person.

Judge John D. Humphries signed an order authorizing the plaintiff to file suit without costs, subject to legal objections by the defendants.

B A R ASSOCIATION TO GET BOAT RIDE AT SAVANNAH MEET

The Savannah Bar association will entertain members of the Georgia State Bar association with a boat ride which will begin at Savannah harbor at 5 o'clock p. m. June 2, according to notice sent to Atlanta lawyers by H. F. Lawson, of Hawkinsville, secretary of the state bar association. The state body will hold its annual session at Savannah June 2-3-4 and the boat ride provided by the Savannah bar will be one of the chief entertainment features of the convention, according to Mr. Lawson. Many members of the association throughout the state are preparing to attend the convention this year as several notable speakers will appear on the program.

ASHEVILLE GIVEN STOP ON NEW YORK, ATLANTA AIR LINE

Washington, May 20.—(AP).—Designation of Asheville, N. C., as a stop on the New York-Atlanta air mail route to be served by a "feeder" line from Spartanburg by the present contractor without further advertising, is permissible, in the opinion of Comptroller General McCarl.

Postmaster General New sought the opinion of the comptroller general in view of the desire of Asheville interests to have air mail service and of the willingness of the Pittsburgh Aircraft company to perform the service. The postoffice department has not yet signified its intention to inaugurate the service but it is considered probable that the feeder line will be placed in operation when the new service begins should Asheville interests guarantee sufficient postal business.

Opening of the new New York-Atlanta air mail service this summer depends upon the lighting of the airway by the government under the direction of the department of commerce. The funds for the lighting system will become available July 1. Orders for equipment have been placed for delivery at that time and work will be rushed in order that the service may be started at the earliest moment.

VITAL STATISTICS LAW BEING DRAFTED

An act empowering Georgia counties to put into effect the vital statistics law ratified by the people in the last general election is being drafted by Assistant Attorney General T. R. Cress. The act will be submitted to the legislature and after its passage the constitutional amendment voted in the election will become a law.

Old Charter Supported By Executive Committee Of Retail Food Dealers

Disadvantages of Proposed New Charter Far Outweigh Good Points, Says Statement.

The executive committee of the Atlanta Retail Food Dealers' association Friday adopted recommendations of the legislative committee of that body, and advised 500 members of the association to support the present form of city government in Atlanta as opposed to the proposed city manager system.

It was made plain that the executive committee did not wish to appear dictatorial, but the statement said that "inasmuch as a number of members of the association have not time to investigate facts themselves, we offer our opinion."

The recommendation of the legislative committee, which investigated the merits and demerits of the proposed new charter and which was approved by the executive committee, bore the signatures of J. H. Bullock, chairman, and R. V. Bergen, secretary.

DANGER SEEN IN PROVISION.

One of the most dangerous provisions of the proposed city manager charter forces the city to bear the expense of political office-seekers, according to a statement issued Friday by the citizens' committee for the present charter.

Text of the statement follows: "In addition to the flexible tax raising clause in the city manager charter experiment, whereby the council of 15 can disturb the tax rate without even having to wait two years to ask the legislature, there are many other foolish provisions therein.

"What is probably the most unwise and impractical provision of all, is that section of the city manager charter (section 220) which provides that candidates for public office shall have their literature mailed out, at their campaign advertisements paid for at the city's expense.

"The advocates of the new scheme loudly proclaim that high-type men are going to run when their charter is installed.

"From the above section it would seem that they are not looking for these high-type men, but have provided the ways for all manner of irresponsible cranks and professional runners to offer.

"Political Breadline."

"In other words, a sort of political breadline where all manner of cranks, freaks and impetuous politicians may step up and run for any office at public expense and have the poor overland taxpayers of Atlanta foot the bill.

"While they were at it they should have also provided a free municipal handwagon and free cigars for these impetuous candidates to hand out to the taxpayers' expense.

"It is said that a northern city one tried this foolish thing, with the result that 22 candidates put forth their names for one little office.

"It was found that only four were really running. The other 18 were cranks, jokers and self-advertisers, including several patent medicine takers who merely wanted their names advertised at the taxpayers' expense.

"What a commentary on high-class, efficient government it would be, with a horde of irresponsibles running at public expense, out of which a council of 15 would be chosen, vested with power to select an all-powerful city manager.

"The new city manager charter loads up the government with all sorts of new jobs and useless experts and as the last straw which breaks the camel's back it even makes the poor taxpayer pay the campaign expenses of those who will spend his money."

Completion of the program for the first regional conference of the Hadassah, which will assemble in Atlanta Sunday, several hundred delegates from Tennessee, Alabama, Florida and Georgia, were announced at the local headquarters of the Jewish women's organization Friday afternoon.

Visitors will be welcomed at the Baltimore hotel Sunday morning by a committee composed of officials of various Atlanta organizations and including Mrs. Frank H. Neely, Mrs. J. E. Somerville, Mrs. Sam E. Levy and Mrs. Sam Rosenberg.

Following opening of the session an informal dinner will be held at the Baltimore. At 8 o'clock Sunday night a mass meeting and reception will be held for the delegates in the Atlanta Jewish Women's club. The meeting will be open to the public and will be featured by discussion of the work of the Hadassah and United Palestine appeal.

A business session Monday morning an election of officers in the afternoon will bring the conference to a conclusion.

GIVE POLLING PLACES FOR ELECTION MAY 25

Polling places in the primary election of May 25 and for the city manager charter, which also will be held on that date, were designated Friday in simultaneous announcements of W. J. Lane, secretary of the city democratic executive committee, and City Clerk Walter C. Taylor, who will have charge of the elections.

Although voting places for the charter and primary elections will be at the same places, with the single exception of the first ward "B" precinct, separate ballot boxes will be maintained and separate election managers and clerks will have charge.

Following are the polling places in each ward:

POWER COMPANY STARTS HUGE SIGN ON SPRING STREET

The largest electric sign south of the Mason and Dixon line flashed on in Atlanta Friday night at 8:30 o'clock. It belongs to the Georgia Power company and is located on one of the gas holders near the Spring Street viaduct.

The sign, which reads "Electric and Gas Service—Georgia Power Company," is 110 feet long and 36 feet high. The word "service" in the sign has letters eight feet high while the upper line has letters six feet high and the signature is in letters four feet high.

Approximately three miles of wire was required to equip the new sign and 2,257 25-watt lamps are used in lighting it. The lighting effects are controlled by an automatic time-switch equipped with an astronomical dial. The sign is made of porcelain enamel steel and weighs 15 tons.

Illumination from the sign is plain.

INSPIRING PROGRAM FOR ORGAN RECITAL

An inspiring program of organ music will be presented Sunday afternoon at the regular organ recital in the city auditorium by Charles A. Sheldon, Jr., city organist. These Sunday afternoon recitals are free to the public.

The program is as follows:
Sonata in A Minor, first movement, Rheinberger.
"Nobody Knows the Trouble I See," negro spiritual; arrangement, J. R. Gillette.

"Chanson du Soir," Fersinger.
"Solemn Prelude," Noble.
"Morning Song," Kramer.
"Offertoire in D Minor," Batiste.
"Traumerei," Schumann.
"Improvisation."

ly visible many blocks away. When it is flashed for the first time Friday night hundreds of Atlantans who were in the downtown section were attracted by its brilliance.

Union Scale Ordinance Would Cut Bond Money $800,000, Says Barker

Executive Officer of Chamber Cites Recent Construction Bids as Showing Taxpayers' Burden.

If the state supreme court upholds the validity of an ordinance passed last summer by city council providing that union scale wages be paid on all civic improvement work executed by private companies or by city employees, such action by the court will result in a direct loss of approximately $800,000 to taxpayers from the $8,000,000 improvement bond issue voted for that work, according to B. S. Barker, executive vice president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

This declaration was made Friday by Mr. Barker in a public statement in which are presented statistics intended to show that labor cost alone will be increased almost 25 per cent for all city work in the event that the court should uphold the ordinance making the payment of union scale wages mandatory.

Citing as an example the bids filed by construction companies for reconstruction work on the Ashby Street school, Vice President Barker declared that the contractors submitted two bids—one unrestricted and the other providing for the payment of union scale wages. The union scale clause resulted in an increase of approximately 11 per cent of the total bid.

On an average, he declared. Taking this increase as a basis for computation, the chamber executive declared that this provision, if passed by the supreme court, will cost 11 per cent of the $8,000,000 bond issue, or $880,000, which otherwise might be utilized for further civic improvements.

Status of Ordinance.
The status of the ordinance today remains in the hands of the supreme court for decision. Last summer the union wage scale ordinance was passed by city council. The industrial bureau of the chamber of commerce applied for an injunction restraining the city from putting the ordinance into effect. A temporary injunction was granted and the case was transferred to the supreme court for decision.

School Bids.
"Last summer the city council passed an ordinance requiring the payment of the union scale of wages on all city work and on all work done for the city by contractors. The industrial relations bureau of the chamber of commerce filed an injunction against the operation of the ordinance as working a hardship on the taxpayers of the city. The local court passed the case on to the supreme court of the state of Georgia and allowed the temporary injunction to stand pending decision of the high court. The case was argued before the higher court and still is there for decision, the ordinance being inoperative in the interim."

When it was decided to rebuild the Ashby Street school the school board called for alternate bids from contractors, one bid being based upon the unrestricted purchase of labor and the other upon the basis as defined by the proposed city ordinance. Of the nine contractors competing, five offered alternate bids. The other four refused or failed to bid under the restrictions of the ordinance. The following are the bids of the alternate contractors opened at public opening:

Contractor	Under Restricted Proposal Differing Bid Ordinance	Under Unrestricted Proposal
George A. Clayton	$54,845	$67,587
Allen Artley Co.	51,644	64,142
Georgia Construction Co.	52,300	65,700
Ed R. Hays & Sons	49,923	63,923
Shuler Co.	49,425	64,925
W. T. Francis Co.	41,570	54,570
Shelton Construction Co.	57,282	70,282
W. H. Butler	46,420	59,420
J. H. Butler	48,800	61,800

The differences run as high as 11 per cent of the entire cost of the project. In most cases the contractor added from 20 to 25 per cent of his normal labor cost to make his bid conform to the terms of the proposed ordinance.

400 O'KEEFE HIGH PUPILS AT BANQUET
More than 400 students of O'Keefe Junior High school attended the annual banquet Friday night at the Kimball house, at which approximately 125 sweaters and letters were awarded for outstanding service to the school in its various activities including work on the school paper, student government committees, annual, the athletic field and other forms of special work. Professor S. M. Hastings was in charge of the banquet.

Second Week of 'Right-Ad' Contest Closes Monday

With the second weekly judging in the $4,000 amateur ad-writing contest of The Constitution only two days away, it behooves all readers to get busy and try their advertising ideas submitting them in time for the $50 cash and 120 desirable merchandise prizes. Ads received before 9 o'clock Monday morning will be in time.

It is easy to win a merchandise prize for their so many awarded. Here is what Mrs. Rachael Peoples Rogers, 1827 Adams Trust Company building, winner of three first merchandise prizes, says about her rewards:

"This afternoon there was such an equal distribution of values on the table that we 'first prizes' could hardly decide. Here was some very useful gifts, but I needed, but there was something that played to my vanity, my femininity, something I wanted. Now I know how was a girl to decide? Well, I decided both ways, accepting two Whiting & Davis mesh bags (of different styles) and a Parker set (fountain pen and pencil). I got two things I wanted and one needed."

Try Your Luck.
There is nothing in this contest and everyone is on an equal basis. It is made easy for amateurs, because people who have an unfair advantage—newspaper employees and professional ad writers—are ruled out. Sharpen your pencil and enter this amusing game today.

- Rules.
- 1—The contest may be entered at any time merely by sending an advertising idea to the "Right-Ad" Editor, The Atlanta Constitution.
 - 2—Everyone may compete except professional ad writers and newspaper employees. This is an amateur contest for people who have never written advertising.
 - 3—Write about any one advertiser or as many as you like. You may win any number of prizes.
 - 4—Each ad submitted must be on a separate sheet of paper. Write on one side of the paper only your name and address on the other side. Put as many ads as you wish in the same envelope.
 - 5—The contestant is under no obligation of any kind.
 - 6—A different group of judges will be selected and announced each week from among Atlanta advertising men.
 - 7—The names of all prize winners will be published each week and some of the prize winning ads reproduced.
 - 8—The four grand cash prizes of $200, $100 and $50 will be awarded.

One hundred and twenty individual prizes will be awarded weekly—five prizes for the best ads on each advertiser. Fifty dollars in cash will be awarded weekly as a grand prize.

The four grand cash prizes of $200, $100 and $50 will be awarded.

Mrs. Norman Adams, of Tignall, is congratulated for her $50 prize-winning ad on "Thrifty Thursday." Her idea was carried out more in detail in the M. Rich & Bros. Co. regular "Thrifty Thursday" ad.

It seems that everyone is familiar with "Thrifty Thursday," so it might as well be even an assignment for this week's ads. Get busy and see if you can write an ad as deserving as that of Mrs. Adams. You know all about "Thrifty Thursday" and the wonderful bargains that are offered on that day. Perhaps you can think of a new way to use the money you save by buying on this day.

But "Thrifty Thursday" is not the only day housewives save at the M. Rich & Bros. Co. for in every department prices are right every day. The advantages this institution enjoys because of its nature are also enjoyed by customers in the form of greater savings every day in the year.

ATTORNEY SCORES MISSING PASTOR DOROTHY MACKAYE TRACED IN KANSAS

BY GEORGE H. BEALE.
Los Angeles, Calif., May 20.—(United News.)—The question of whether Paul Kelly, screen juvenile, beat Ray Raymond to death with his bare fists, is expected to go to a jury Monday.

Final arguments of both state and defense indicated that the issue of the cause of Raymond's death would have to be decided before the jury will be able to weigh Kelly's guilt of innocence.

The arguments dealt largely with the conflicting opinions of medical authorities as to whether the beating Raymond suffered caused his death.

Deputy District Attorney Kemp, who opened the arguments, in reviewing the evidence, spoke bitterly of Dorothy Mackaye, Raymond's widow, and his asserted sweetheart of Kelly.

He referred sarcastically to her repeated answer "I don't remember," when she was being questioned by the prosecution.

Following Kemp, W. I. Gilbert, defense attorney, made an impassioned plea to the jury, declaring the prosecution was itself guilty of not hoping for conviction.

Gilbert was still speaking when court adjourned to meet again at 2 p. m. Monday.

When Gilbert finishes his argument, Chief Prosecutor Forrest Murray will deliver the final argument for the state, and then Judge Charles Burnell will instruct the jury.

NO DEVELOPMENTS IN ATLANTA.
In Atlanta no developments in the search for the Rev. Roy Glick Hershey, missing Atlanta (Ga.) minister, was in St. Joseph May 12, police said today. The man bought a second-hand coupe here and then bought a Missouri state license plate at the office of the deputy state registrar. His license number was 358-472 and was made out to "R. Glick."

The man was described as "dignified and gentlemanly" and said that he was a traveling salesman from Detroit, Mich.

The St. Joseph police checked up the man's presence here at the request of the police of Junction City, Kans., where he is said to have gone from here.

business. Whatever it be, he never revealed it. Lindbergh would abandon it when forced to converse and return to mull over it in sad pleasure at the first opportunity.

Every fact he had to supply about his previous life and private beginning was literally pried from him.

After all, he's only 25 years old and very fond of his mother, who was at the moment of his take-off just starting for the Detroit schoolhouse where she is a teacher.

Lindbergh's father, now dead, was a Minnesota congressman. But he was born in Detroit on February 4, 1902, and has always been kindred in spirit with his mother, Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh.

Went to Public Schools.
He went to public schools there, and later in the state of Washington and California. Eventually he entered the University of Wisconsin and began to work his way through a course in mechanical engineering. A year and a half he spent thus, but the sight of an airplane skimming across the campus was too much for him.

"Mother, I'm going to be an aviator," announced Lindbergh.

It was all right with mother. She was worried more about his growing too fast than about his ability to take care of himself. From a flying school at Lincoln, Neb., Lindbergh went to Brook field and Kelly field and qualified as an army pilot. Then he entered the air mail service. His title comes from a commission as flight commander of the 10th observation squadron of the Missouri national guard.

He has spent 1,800 hours in the air and jumped in parachutes four times to save his neck, and thus is the only "four-star" member of the Caterpillar club, the organization of pilots who are alive because they jumped.

Jumps to Safety.
When he was an army cadet his plane collided with that of another student at 2,500 feet. Lindbergh jumped to safety, when he landed he was "Lucky" Lindbergh.

Not long afterwards, at St. Louis, a plane he was testing failed to come out of a tail spin. Lindbergh leaped again.

In September, 1927, fog shut out the ground while he was carrying the air mail. He was 5,000 feet up and his supply low. Finally the engine coughed out and quit. Lindbergh adjusted his parachute, climbed out on a wing and stepped off. Some time later he found the wrecked plane arranged to have the mail forwarded to Chicago, and reported to the flying field.

Less than three weeks later near Bloomington, Ill., another plane went bad on the lone flyer and he stepped out of it, floating 13,000 to the ground. Nearly all of Lindbergh's flying has been alone, like his two-hop journey from coast to coast in 21 hours and 20 minutes to enter the Paris race.

He is fairly muscular, but draws heavily upon his youth. It was characteristic that he should start upon a 32-hour jaunt to Paris rubbing his eyes from a sleep of but two hours.

OFFICER KILLS FARMER IN DUEL

McRae, Ga., May 20.—(Special.)—John Bass, farmer living near here, was shot and killed this afternoon by County Policeman M. D. Long in a duel between the two men and a third man who had been shot by Bass, according to reports reaching here. The shooting took place at the Jacksonville ferry.

It is said that Long, accompanied by another officer, T. W. Mills, gave chase to an automobile in which Bass and his son were driving. Another man was traveling, and which was thought by the officers to contain liquor.

As the officers approached the Bass car a bug was said to have been thrown from the car and at the same time Bass is said to have defied the officers and fired upon Long as he alighted from his automobile. Long returned the shots, firing three times. It is said, killing Bass.

Long was struck in the abdomen but the wound is not considered serious. He was brought to McRae by Mills. Long has been policeman of Tallapoosa county for approximately two years and has done much to rid the county of the illicit whiskey traffic and is a fearless and energetic worker against any and all kinds of lawlessness in the county.

A republican candidate? he asked. "Is there any longer doubt about the national partnership between the league and the republican political machine of every northern and western state?"

NAVY RESOURCES TO GUARD FLIER

Washington, May 20.—(AP)—On every hand, official Washington today expressed admiration for the daring attempt of Charles A. Lindbergh to fly across the Atlantic alone and the hope that he would succeed in his adventure.

At the white house it was said that President Coolidge was watching with interest the flight and had best wishes for Lindbergh's success.

At the navy department, where everyone was pulling for the lanky aviator, even though he got the jump on Commander Byrd, "the navy's own," at the postoffice department, where it was revealed with pride that Lindbergh had a great record as an air mail pilot, at the headquarters of the shipping board which had instructed its ships on the north Atlantic traffic lane to be on the lookout for the flier, and among government aviators interest was intense.

Praise Flier for Pluck.

Praise for Lindbergh, apparently, was due chiefly to his pluck in attempting, alone, the "great circle" course across the sea without any great "outfit" of navigation instruments.

An official statement issued at the navy department declared that he was making new history in aerial navigation as well as in other respects.

The statement, prepared by Lieutenant Logan C. Ramsey, and S. H. Kinard, naval photographers, said that, having accidents and other things, Lindbergh's flight was an excellent example of the skill and determination of a man who, in the face of a great task, did not flinch.

All government ships in the path of Lindbergh's flight have been ordered to report his progress and render aid if the young flier should meet with misfortune. As in the Nungesser case, attempt, shipping board vessels in the Atlantic will report by radio direct to Washington any information they obtain.

Few Ships in Lane.

Although many of the government's ships are now plowing through the north Atlantic, naval officials expressed doubt that these ships would get a glimpse of him if he were to fly the far north route chosen by Nungesser and Goll. Few vessels were believed to be in that lane because of the ice prevalent there at this time of the year.

Lindbergh's nonchalant jump from coast to coast with one stop convinced aviation experts here that he was to be reckoned with in any transatlantic air race. Today, on learning that he had started, the whole attitude of Washington could be summed up in the oft heard expression:

"I hope he makes it."

Official Blessing.

William P. MacCracken, assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, said Lindbergh has "our good wishes and our blessing."

"We certainly hope he makes it," Mr. MacCracken said. "We think he has a chance. He has had the cooperation of the second national aviation commission, and we think he has a chance. He has had the cooperation of the second national aviation commission, and we think he has a chance. He has had the cooperation of the second national aviation commission, and we think he has a chance."

DESPAIRED OF EVER HAVING GOOD COMPLEXION

Pimples relieved after trying well known remedy

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 31.—"My skin had been so bad for some time ago when blackheads and then pimples developed. They spread rapidly and I was terribly annoyed. I used several suggested remedies without good results, and was disgusted and just ready to give up hope of ever having a good complexion again when I saw one of your advertisements. At the same time, a friend recommended Resinol Soap and Ointment so I began to use them. After a few applications my trouble was relieved, and I now keep these products always on hand. They are so soothing and refreshing and I find the ointment so good for the scalp and for chapped hands."—(Signed) Miss Carmel De Felice, E. 1223 Third Avenue.

MOTHER OF AVIATOR
CONTINUES TEACHING

MRS. EVANGELINE LINDBERGH

Detroit, May 20.—(AP)—As her son, Captain Charles Lindbergh, covered the first part of his journey to his home from New York to Paris, Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh today continued her duties as teacher in Cass Technical high school, where she is assisted by the dangers of her son's flight.

She denied herself to newspaper interviews by telling friends and fellow teachers that she did not want to be bothered and entering the school room took up the routine without apparent anxiety.

Early in the day news of the flier's departure was brought to her by a telegram from R. G. Blythe, a friend of the captain.

"Charles took off at 7:54 a. m.," it read. "He will be in Paris next."

Meanwhile John C. Lodge, a grand uncle of Lindbergh, president of the Detroit city council and acting mayor, expressed his hopes for the success of the flight. "I believe he will make it," was his comment.

He should meet with bad fortune and fail to reach his goal.

Vessels Warned.

Admiral Eberle, chief of naval operations, sent the following message to all ships and stations:

"Pilot Lindbergh in the land plane, Spirit of St. Louis, a single-engine monoplane, departed on the great circle course from Garden City, L. I., for Land's End, England, and Paris at 7:52 a. m. New York standard time. (New York standard time.) Plane not equipped with radio. Request any ship sighting plane make report of it."

Hope of the army corps for the success of Lindbergh's flight was voiced by Major Walter Kilmer, executive officer of the corps.

"Captain Lindbergh has many comrades in the army who will follow his flight with the greatest interest and who wish him every success," Major Kilmer said. "We in the army and the navy are all hoping for his success."

Through this cooperation it is hoped that the youthful Paris-bound flier will not so much as seem to have been forgotten by the navy.

The captain is being instructed to keep a careful lookout and to communicate immediately with either the New York or European offices at first sight of the plane. The ships arriving here within the next three days that may be expected to sight the plane are the following:

Saturday: The Stuttgart, of the North German Lloyd line, and the Sunday, of the Hamburg American line, of the Red Star and the Carmania and Transylvania, of the Cunard.

Sunday: The Baltic, of the White Star; the Carmania and Transylvania, of the Cunard; the Stockholm, of the Swedish American; the Minnesota, of the Atlantic Transport; and the Thuringia, of the Hamburg American.

As soon as word reaches any of the shipping offices it will be forwarded to the press. Such government boats as may come into the plane's path will also report to the naval communications office, but it was said there that nothing would be given out unless it was authentic.

heaved whatever danger a moonlit night might bring him.

Fame or Death Ahead.

When he reached St. John's, Lindbergh had traveled 1,200 miles from the take-off at Roosevelt field, Long Island Sound, the Atlantic off Massachusetts, the reaches of Nova Scotia, had fled by him. No one knew where he was until long after dawn had come out of the east to greet him.

Captain Lindbergh had entrusted himself to the night.

Rising from Roosevelt field, escaping disaster by a few feet as the wheels of his heavily laden little craft cleared a house-top, Lindbergh disappeared eastward—the light glint has carried him through numerous air currents riding on the one wing, the chances of death on the other.

A tail wind drove him swiftly eastward, and reports of his progress loomed.

Coast-to-Coast Record

MAIL PILOT FIRST TO MAKE LONG HOPS ALONE

New York, May 20.—(AP)—Two records made by Captain Charles Lindbergh incidental to his attempt to fly from New York to Paris for the Raymond Orteig prize of $25,000 centered attention today on the St. Louis-Chicago air mail route.

His flying time from San Diego, Calif., to Roosevelt field, Long Island, was approximately 21 hours and 20 minutes, the quickest ever made from coast to coast. And he was the first pilot to make such a long hop as that from San Diego to St. Louis, about 1,400 miles, alone. His total distance from coast to coast was about 2,550 miles.

Lindbergh, 25, lean, muscular, six-footer, has been flying for six years. He was born in Detroit, where his widowed mother now lives. He began his aerial career at 19, leaving his home in Little Falls, Minn., when he came back to those who waited anxiously at the field.

The official time of the start of the "Spirit of St. Louis" was 7:51:30 15 a. m., eastern daylight saving time. An hour later the silver and gray monoplane was piercing the mists above Rhode Island.

Swings North.

Inside the tiny cockpit, peering ahead by means of a periscope and what was called, "Fame as seldom before," to a 25-year-old man, success had been such an elusive thing that he had taken two French aviators on the same route westward if a failure.

Inside this uncertainty Lindbergh rode at a speed of more than 100 miles an hour. As he gasoline in his plane diminished he was able to fly faster, ever faster toward the goal a continent away.

It was the short route across the ocean, so far as distances between land were concerned. But in choosing the great circle, Lindbergh signed away much of his chance of aid from his fellow man. For in the north Atlantic the sea is few ships to sight him in case the flier of the plane should crash, the wings crumple and Lindbergh fall victim to the restless waves.

Lindbergh Flies Low.

At St. John's, Lindbergh passed directly over the city. He was flying so low that people on the street saw the wheels of his plane and could distinguish its silver gray color. He came from a westerly direction indicating he had crossed from St. Mary's bay directly over the eastern section of the Avalon peninsula.

Then out to sea. It was considered unlikely that any more ships would be sighted. Lindbergh turned northward and sailed on a great circle, New Scotland, Newfoundland, then the open sea to Ireland, England and the goal at Paris.

Middleboro, Mass., next reported the plane's progress an hour and 25 minutes after the start.

The single motor upon which the fate of Lindbergh's lone-hand flight depended was roaring smoothly and the "Spirit of St. Louis" was gaining altitude and skimming northward at high speed.

Progress Reported.

Successive bulletins reported the northward flight up the Atlantic coast ceased for a time to reach the starting point, and airmen who realized the perils of the first hours when the monoplane was weighted beyond its normal capacity shook their heads gravely.

Then everyone broke into broad grins.

"Luck," Lindbergh was putting it over.

Far away over Meteghan, in Digby county, Nova Scotia, the slim gray plane was sighted, headed for Newfoundland.

Three different stations in Nova Scotia reported seeing the "Spirit of St. Louis."

The motor's tune was a cheerful one. The plane's speed something around 100 miles an hour. The young pilot, alone in the mist and fog which still imperiled his adventure, was nearing the point where he would leave land and steer out over the open sea.

Clear weather lay ahead for that most perilous part of the flight.

High over Cape Breton island flew the "Spirit of St. Louis" at 5 p. m., Atlantic daylight saving time.

Thus far, all was well. Lindbergh carried no wireless with which to port his progress, and for the most part he could only imagine the grim-faced youngster of 25 who sat hour after hour holding the little plane on its lonely journey.

Youngster Is Grim.

It was a subdued youngster with a drawn face and a faraway look in his eyes, in contrast to the light-hearted, laughing Lindbergh of the last week—saw munching a ham sandwich, washing it down with cold water, while mechanics busied themselves putting the last of the 448 gallons of gasoline into the tanks of his plane.

Newspapermen and curious throngs which had waited through the approaching dawn to see the start kept a little apart, leaving Lindbergh to his thoughts.

Commander Richard Byrd, who is to take the Fokker monoplane America on the same adventurous journey, approached to wish his young rival good luck.

Wishes Rival Luck.

Lindbergh, apparently embarrassed, bowed his head and did not meet the eyes of his rival.

"Good luck and God be with you," Byrd, with Bert Acosta, pilot of the America, had planned to fly with Lindbergh for the first few miles of flight.

His father was a lawyer and member of congress, and going to Lincoln, Neb., for his law lessons.

Later he bought his own plane and when he was appointed a flying cadet in the army flew it to Kelly field, San Antonio, Texas. There he learned the rudiments of military flying and after 10 months emerged a finished aviator, from the pursuit school at Brooks field, San Antonio.

After leaving the army Lindbergh flew for a year in various independent enterprises, including several flying circuses. Finally he was appointed chief pilot on the St. Louis-Chicago air mail route, from which he was given an indefinite leave of absence to prepare for his trans-Atlantic hop.

He is a captain and flight commander in the 10th observation squadron, Missouri National Guard air unit in St. Louis.

The journey, but was at breakfast when word was flashed that the Spirit of St. Louis had gone roaring into the mists, headed for the St. Louis-Chicago air mail route.

Some 2,000 persons, however, were at the runway when the Lindbergh monoplane was towed to the western end of Roosevelt field, about 150 miles off the coast of Ireland, the President Roosevelt was steaming due west along her altered course. The weather at that time did not appear favorable. There were occasional rain squalls and the visibility was poor at times, but improving. There was a light choppy sea.

After posting a double lookout, Captain Fried invited all the passengers to watch for the aviator. A special cluster of powerful lights was arranged to serve as a beacon for the flier. These can be seen 20 miles. The ship's huge searchlight also will scan the sky and water from midnight until dawn.

Captain Fried planned to remain on the ship for less than three weeks, like a moth, he said, "Lindbergh will come to our lights if he sees them."

In Simple Khaki.

Then Lindbergh, wearing none of the fancy costumes of silk and rule her favored by many airmen, but a simple uniform of khaki, with gold buttons and high boots, climbed into the cockpit.

Just before he stepped into the plane he said:

"When I get into the plane it will be like getting into my death chamber. If I get out of it in Paris it will be like getting a pardon from the governor."

To which fatalistic utterance, the youngster added a firm voice:

"So long."

Then, in the cockpit, out of sight of the crowd that peered through the side windows of the fuselage, Lindbergh bowed himself with the unerring instrument upon which his success—and his life—depended.

Waves for Start.

Alternately he sped up and idled the plane's single motor.

Finally satisfied, the youth leaned from one of the side windows and waved a hand to the waiting mechanics. If he shouted something in farewell it was lost in the motor's roar.

Blocks were removed from in front of the monoplane's front wheels, and slowly it gathered speed as it moved forward down the runway.

Experienced airmen at Roosevelt field literally held their breath in anticipation. Many had witnessed the disaster which marked the attempt of Rene Fonck to start for Paris in an overloaded plane.

Would the Spirit of St. Louis be able to rise with its weight of 3,150 pounds?

Gains Speed.

The monoplane gained more speed as it brushed the trim surface of the runway, splashed across mud puddles caused by the steady rain, and finally hit a bump 100 yards from its starting point.

Everyone watching gasped as the plane tilted and rocked, but the motor roared true and dragged the Spirit of St. Louis ahead to safety.

Another bump sent the monoplane rocking and bounding, but still Lindbergh held it to its course and a moment later the wheels were seen to leave the ground.

One foot, two feet, three feet, at a speed of nearly 100 miles an hour Lindbergh gained altitude at this distressingly slow rate.

Just ahead loomed a shack and telegraph wires, beyond the end of the runway.

The Spirit of St. Louis cleared them by a few feet, and was off for Paris.

LINDBERGH FLIES LOW.

LEAVING ST. JOHN'S.

St. John's, Newfoundland, May 20. Captain Charles Lindbergh took his departure from the American continent, en route to the open sea and Paris, in a spectacular manner that thrilled the hundreds of persons who saw him pass over St. John's at 8:45 p. m., Atlantic coast daylight saving time.

As he passed through the narrow gap of St. John's, which is only 200 feet wide with towering hills on both sides, his plane was 100 feet lower than the summit of Signal hill, and it seemed as if the daring aviator, instead of rising above the gorge, had purposely chosen to dive through the narrow gap in the most sensational manner.

Having passed through the narrow gap he took a course east by north and rising beautifully as he headed for the ocean. His passage left the hundreds of spectators, in the streets and in windows, fairly gasping with surprise and admiration.

DE PINEDO ALIGHTS IN NEWFOUNDLAND

Temperance, N. F., May 20.—(AP)—Commander De Pinedo arrived here in his plane, the Santa Maria II., at 5:03 p. m., Atlantic daylight time.

Commander De Pinedo, who left Shippen, N. B., at 11:55 a. m. on the last leg of his journey in the new world. From here he plans to take the America, had planned to fly with Lindbergh for the first few miles of flight.

Emergency Rations
Carried by Flier

New York, May 20.—(AP)—Breakfast, lunch and dinner will all look alike to Captain Lindbergh, for he will subsist on his long flight on army emergency rations—a monotonous, if nourishing fare.

Emergency rations are composed of dried beef, which contains salt; hardtack, which includes salt and lime; with chocolate and albumen (whites of eggs) for desert, topped off with a bit of caffeine.

Eight ounces of these rations form a day's food. Lindbergh is carrying 56 ounces, enough to last seven days.

DAKOTA GOVERNOR
BARELY ESCAPES
STRAY BIRD SHOT

Bismarck, N. D., May 20.—(AP)—Boys shooting at pigeons sent a stray bullet through a window in the executive mansion here late yesterday, missing Governor A. G. Sorlie by inches.

While the chief executive looked through a large plate glass window, glass splinters struck his hand and an inch-long hole in the window showed where a bullet had hit.

Officials had visions of an attempted assassination. Other theories included the act as a demonstration by a crowd for less than three weeks ago another window was broken, presumably by a bullet, but the family was absent from home at the time.

College Building
Fund Shows $64
Balance in Bank

Unusual among building reports is that rendered Friday night by the building committee supervising expenditure of $185,000 appropriated by the general assembly in 1925 for replacement of properties destroyed by fire at the Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville. The report, far from showing the usual deficit, revealed an unexpended balance of $64.97.

In addition to the financial advantage, the report showed that replacements had been so constructed as to provide a decided improvement over conditions existing prior to the fire.

According to state officials, only two instances of similar nature are on record in the state's history, one in the case of the building of the present state capital, which returned an unexpended fund of $118.43 to the treasury, the other the instance of the erection of Park Hall at the State College for Women at Milledgeville, which showed a favorable balance of $30.30.

ATLANTA PLANE TO TAKE THE AIR FOR TRIAL FLIGHT

An airplane designed and constructed in Atlanta, similar to Captain Lindbergh's trans-Atlantic plane, will take the air this afternoon at Candler field. With it will rise the hope of a future airplane industry in this city.

The plane, which uses a Curtis OX5 motor, was built by Lieutenant E. T. Caldwell, for Henry Harris, of the Ford Motor company in Atlanta, who ordered Lieutenant Caldwell to build the plane. This required four months' work. It was constructed at a cost of $1,500.

Sharkey's Looping Right Stops Maloney in Fifth Round

Jack Batters Boston Foe To Helpless Mess

Jim Floored Twice in Fifth—Magnolia Stops Fight as "Strong Boy" Reels on Ropes, Semi-Conscious.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New York, May 20.—(AP)—"I have nothing to say, absolutely nothing," Jack Sharkey declared tonight after his five-round conquest of Jimmy Maloney.

The former sailor, however, paid tribute to his fallen rival. "Maloney is faster than when we last fought, more aggressive, and has developed a left hook that is a corker. He failed to shake me, though, at any part of the going."

Sharkey disclosed that the swinging, looping right that floored Maloney three times before the referee stopped the fight was a comparatively new acquisition to his fighting repertoire. "I used that to slow up Will and I nearly put him away with it in the fourth round. I saved that right hand and worked a lot to develop it during the training period."

As a parting shot before leaving the hotel, Sharkey had this to say with characteristic candor about the comeback of Jack Dempsey, former world champion. "Well, he's fighting me now, that's sure. He's got to beat me to get at Tunney. He's got some job."

Maloney had no all to offer for his showing. His face was so badly battered, eyes and lips cut, that friends rushed him from the park as soon as he dressed.

There were some error about that marigold stripe. This fellow didn't know when he was licked. Sharkey has a cruel look to him. With his pale gray eyes and a sneering mouth he is the one you want to see patted around.

He charged unsafely at Maloney and as he charged he banged him with two good thumping hands, whipping Jim's head around on the swivel and poking him fiercely around the middle, where Maloney is inclined to be somewhat mushy. Jimmy must have missed a hundred hooks and swings for the head. He was trying desperately to get right, which is his knock-out number, but when he did land the blows didn't even shake Sharkey and most of the time the long left hand casually flicked his head and let the gloves slide by.

Sharkey wore high-waisted trunks and in the first two rounds he was doing his best to take one in the crotch and perhaps another in the way through a fluke victory with a claim of foul.

But starting the third round, Maloney danced anxiously around, waiting to get under way again, the referee fouled the trunks down four inches to Sharkey's waist line. Then they resumed.

They had a rousing fight for it as far as they went and the 30,000 customers, if there were that many, saw a smart, shifty boxer with a pretty lusty punch, come through to fight Jack Dempsey in August.

The first round may have been even, for Maloney landed three free shots at Sharkey's face and plunged both mitts into the body in a rushing attack that carried Jack to the ropes and made him grab hold. But Sharkey, with the longer arms, was rapping Maloney's face with left jabs and an overhand right that left a gash above Jimmy's left eye which immediately began to bleed and swell.

After the first round, Sharkey generally outboxed Maloney as they sparred and he was faster, whipping over his right when they dug their toes in to punch.

The punch that first damaged Maloney was a left hook that drove into his undulating midriff about the middle of round three. Maloney had just crossed a hook himself and was off balance and his muscles were loose, so the punch drilled him powerfully and his left knee came up in a posture of suffering.

It takes a fat boy like Maloney some time to steady himself after one of those stabs under the waistline and Sharkey let him have another to start the fourth, following this with a right to the heart. Maloney was slow with

AROUND THE BIG LEAGUE CIRCUITS

BY UNITED PRESS.

Home run drives at crucial moments played a prominent part in three of the six games of the day in the major leagues. Long and consistent hitting decided two of the others, while pitching strength was the decisive factor in but one contest.

Pie Traynor's circuit blow with the bases full in the twelfth inning spelled ruin for the Giants at the hands of the Pirates. The timely hit completely untied a three-all score and enabled Bush's buntmen to win their second straight game at the Giants, 8 to 3.

In Philadelphia, George Kelly spoiled a perfect day for Hub Prueitt by slugging one out of the lot with the second session and slugging out the Reds a 6 to 3 win over the Phillies in a beautiful pitchers' battle until the latter was removed for a pinch hitter.

It is caused by the fact that the second hole-in-one in that many days was registered at this one, using a number four iron to cup his tee shot on the 165 yard ninth hole.

S. C. Chandler, playing with Jack Binnis, was the hole-in-one in this one, using a number four iron to cup his tee shot on the 165 yard ninth hole.

George Uhl was better than Waite Hoyas as he hit an absolute stop to the winning ways of the Yankees by a 2 to 1 score. The Cleveland twirler allowed but 7 hits and fanned five men.

With hundreds of relatives and friends of students looking on the twenty-fifth annual closing exercises of Marist college were held with a full-dress battalion parade as the feature.

The elaborate military program which lasted practically all the afternoon was in charge of Major Eugene Schuler, commandant of the cadet corps, who also awarded the warrants and military commissions for the year.

A number of competitive drills by the companies and cadets preceded the full-dress parade which ended the exercises.

Company C, under command of Captain Earl Chelena, won the prize for the best drilled company. Duncan Shepherd, a junior in the high school department, won the Silverman medal for the best drilled individual cadet.

Following the military exercises a promenade was held with the cadets, their relatives and friends taking part. Each company erected and decorated a booth on the edge of the drill field where visitors were received and served refreshments.

Chaperons were: Mesdames E. D. Smith, R. H. Martin, C. R. Andrews, Carl H. Chelena, sponsor, Misses Frances Barwell and Della Beveridge; maidens of honor, Misses Dorothy Hobbs, Amelia Holland, Catherine Davis, and Margaret DeGaulle; Peggy Farrell, Nancy McGregor, Martha Barrett, Evelyn Fetscher, Thelma Vickers and Peggy Martin.

Officers of Marist college cadet corps are: Addison Smith, cadet major; Burn McCubbin, adjutant; R. E. Martin, captain company A; Charles Andrews, captain company B; Carl Chelena, captain company C; George Craft, drum major, and Frank McSherry drum corps captain.

Ty Cobb, in Flesh, Meets Ty in Clay--- Both Are Satisfied

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Chicago, Ill., May 20.—Ty Cobb, the "Georgia Peach," in the flesh, looked over Trux Cobb in clay today and admitted it was almost a "split" likeness.

Nelson Tregor, the sculptor, who is able to almost put life into his clay portraits, brought the precious bust in his arms to Chicago. It was an exciting all-night ride and the sculptor did not trust his work to the express car.

Work on the bust, which is the model from which he will cast the bronze "Spirit of Baseball," which will adorn Belle Isle Park, Detroit, proceeded for several hours prior to the game between the Athletics and the White Sox.

The sculptor does not require his subjects to sit in formal attitudes. Cobb walked about, smoked, chatted and joked, while the sculptor caught fitting moods and translated them in the damp clay figure.

George Uhl was better than Waite Hoyas as he hit an absolute stop to the winning ways of the Yankees by a 2 to 1 score. The Cleveland twirler allowed but 7 hits and fanned five men.

With hundreds of relatives and friends of students looking on the twenty-fifth annual closing exercises of Marist college were held with a full-dress battalion parade as the feature.

The elaborate military program which lasted practically all the afternoon was in charge of Major Eugene Schuler, commandant of the cadet corps, who also awarded the warrants and military commissions for the year.

A number of competitive drills by the companies and cadets preceded the full-dress parade which ended the exercises.

Company C, under command of Captain Earl Chelena, won the prize for the best drilled company. Duncan Shepherd, a junior in the high school department, won the Silverman medal for the best drilled individual cadet.

Following the military exercises a promenade was held with the cadets, their relatives and friends taking part. Each company erected and decorated a booth on the edge of the drill field where visitors were received and served refreshments.

Chaperons were: Mesdames E. D. Smith, R. H. Martin, C. R. Andrews, Carl H. Chelena, sponsor, Misses Frances Barwell and Della Beveridge; maidens of honor, Misses Dorothy Hobbs, Amelia Holland, Catherine Davis, and Margaret DeGaulle; Peggy Farrell, Nancy McGregor, Martha Barrett, Evelyn Fetscher, Thelma Vickers and Peggy Martin.

Officers of Marist college cadet corps are: Addison Smith, cadet major; Burn McCubbin, adjutant; R. E. Martin, captain company A; Charles Andrews, captain company B; Carl Chelena, captain company C; George Craft, drum major, and Frank McSherry drum corps captain.

Principal of Rock Springs school for the past year, were transferred. Mrs. Walter will take over the helm of Rock Springs school and Miss Russell, Center Hill.

Sophy Tancred's Husbands

By ELIZABETH YORK MILLER.

INSTALLMENT XXXVI. The Game.

The sardonic old man smirked to himself, and was quite convinced now that he had ferreted out something which might be called secret in Willie's life. Then suddenly the smirk faded, for Landell recalled that first interview when Willie mentioned his mother as staying at a villa—so the cottage had been termed—in the Vallecrosia valley, and that would be near Ventimiglia, or near enough.

But would the young adventurer really have his mother hanging so close to his heels? Wasn't it a much more likely that it was this girl, and that he dragged in the allusion to his mother for sake of effect?

Young, ambitious and poor? Well, we'd see. It would be a game, any way, and Landell felt that something of that sort was needed to lighten the tedium of this place to which he had been recommended for his health's sake. The next day he drove up the Vallecrosia valley alone in one of his big cars, and although he ordered the chauffeur to drive slowly and kept his eye out all the way and back, and although unwillingly he passed the little cottage twice, he did not catch so much as a fleeting glimpse of Miss Bryant. But the invalid, whose couch had been drawn to the front window, saw him both times, and in her own mind was convinced that he was trying to find where she lived and perhaps wished to call upon her.

Mrs. Moppet told Cissy about it, and was so excited that she lost her sleep that night.

For Cissy, however, this incident had quite another significance—unless, of course, it were pure accident. A little shiver ran down her spine, and she wasn't at all certain whether or not she liked the idea of being pursued.

The day of the ball and concert was a busy one for Willie Moppet. His activities were manifold, since he not only had the organizing of Cissy's trial debut on his hands, and a mischievous lark to maneuver in conjunction with the wall, but a private dinner party as well.

With this latter he faced a dilemma, but it was not insoluble. Some time before he had off-handedly invited the Tancred and Lilla Brant to dine with him that night, and had more or less asked Alan Brooke. The latter, however, he could put off very easily.

What Willie hadn't anticipated, however, was a command from H. R. H. the Princess Dobbler to give her dinner that evening at the Doria, as she intended to come to the concert. The old woman had hinted and waited in vain for Lord Landell to ask her to dine, but that secretive gentleman had no wish to be saddled with such a responsibility on that particular evening. It was a night which held possibilities for him, and he was not at all sure the princess would consider it beneath her dignity to attend the ball masque, and impose herself upon him for that function as well.

So he was blind to her suggestive smiles and hints. For Willie, however, there was no easy means of escape. The Princess Dobbler was his social sponsor and immensely valuable to him in the way of introductions when he went to Paris or London, or for all that living here in a retirement and economy she had hosts of friends further afield who were only too glad to do her services involving nothing more than giving entertainment to a charming, well-mannered young man.

As a minor complication Landell, who was being ever so much more amiable to Willie than the latter had expected, offered him the loan of the royal salon for his party while offering himself in the modest role of guest. This, then, was Willie's dilemma: Would the princess object to the Tancred whom she had not seen since that first unfortunate meeting, and would Landell object to the princess?

The noble earl, approached first, said he objected to nothing and to nobody as long as his own wings were not clipped by obligations. The Princess Dobbler, all praise to her, would be Willie's guest, and so would the Tancred. "You'll like Mrs. Tancred," Willie said with cynical craft. "She's a beautiful woman and not too happy with her husband."

Lord Landell's heavy eyelids drooped. "Women marry strange men," he observed. "And you? That pretty girl who's singing—what about her?" Kindness from this left-handed father of his had brought out the submerged arrogance in Willie. Since the episode of Cecilia Bryant being trailed about town, Willie had treated Landell as something a little less than an equal.

"Miss Bryant is not dining with us," he said stiffly. He knew that Landell had been hoping she was; that perhaps it was why the royal salon had been offered.

"No, of course," his lordship agreed. "She won't be dining at all if she takes her singing seriously."

To this obvious truth Willie made no comment, nor did he say anything further about Cissy.

The next thing was to approach the princess. She was quite capable of saying that if the Tancred—that questionable little lady—were not struck off, she couldn't possibly come herself. But the old woman was witty. She had been wretched in one libel suit and she didn't want another; moreover, at her age and with her position, scandalous associations didn't matter at all unless she had some reason for pretending they did. Now that the first shock was over, she was immensely curious about Sophy, and so she gave her permission.

But Willie did not ask Alan Brooke. That would have been too much even for him to tackle. The dinner, he told them all, was to be a hurry up, scratch affair any day. He had this concert on his hands.

"I see the loophole you've made for yourself," Landell said a little sourly. "And the hall? Shall we go together, you and I—a couple of carousers, eh?"

"We might have arranged to go as the Heavenly Twins, if only we thought about it in time," Willie said with cruel malice. "But as a matter of fact I'm fixed up for the ball with a lady. With three ladies, really." He chuckled over his secret.

"Overdoing it, my lad," observed Landell, wondering who these three ladies could be, or if Willie was trying to be humorous in some obscure fashion.

So far Landell hadn't come straight out and asked Willie to present him to Cecilia Bryant. It would be a more striking feather in his cap if he achieved her acquaintance without assistance from this bumptious young man. That would be a salutary lesson for Mr. Williams Ashford-Moppet. Still, Lord Landell would have given much to know if Miss Bryant intended to go to the ball. If she didn't, he himself would much prefer to go to bed.

"I didn't know you were arranging a separate party for this casino affair," he threw out as something for Willie to catch at.

Willie caught it and returned it neatly. "Indeed, sir, if it were a party I'd beg you to come along, but it's nothing like that. You wouldn't be in the least amused."

This last was certainly not true, but served to oil the wheels of courtesy.

Such a lot of running around to be done that day. No one but himself knew how hard Willie Moppet worked. So he was blind to the interesting discoveries he made. First to the florist's where he learned from the young lady behind the counter—a great friend of his—just how many bouquets and been ordered for Cissy and who ordered them. Mermaid, of course, and one from the kind-hearted M. Berchman, and then there was a very important one from Landell—dash his infernal cheek!

Willie pondered over this. It surprised and angered him to the point where he thought of rejecting the loan of the salon for his dinner party. How to checkmate the evil old creature? Willie thought and thought until the new florist's girl grew alarmed at the gloom of his expressions and wondered if she had given him offense in some way.

Today's Social Program Marked By Commencement Gayeties

Commencement of the social summer whirl and the closing of a number of school terms throughout the city will have their place on today's program of interesting events. Members of the women's board of Oglethorpe university will entertain such distinguished guests as William Randolph Hearst, of Los Angeles; Arthur Brisbane, the eminent editorial writer; Mrs. John W. Montgomery, of New York; Dr. Frank S. Barham and William J. Harrison at a play and reception at Lowry hall. The five guests of honor, William Randolph Hearst, Mrs. John W. Montgomery, Lawton B. Evans, of Augusta; E. A. Pound, of Atlanta, and Dr. Warren K. Moorehead, of Massachusetts, will receive degrees from the university.

The initial entertainment of the commencement exercises of Washington seminary will be a lawn party this afternoon given on the spacious school grounds by the alumnae association in compliment to the members of the graduating class. Acting as official hostesses for the occasion will be officers of the association. An interesting class day program will feature the commencement exercises of Woodberry Hall, Miss Susan Livingston, president, in charge. The juniors of the North Avenue Presbyterian school will entertain the seniors, Girls' High school seniors will be honor guests of the alumnae association at the Atlanta Woman's club.

Japanese umbrellas, brilliant lanterns, chop sticks and a variety of features will be in evidence at the East Lake Country club this evening for a dinner-dance which will inaugurate the formal opening of the picturesque terrace, gathering the social contingent of Atlanta at what is promised to be one of the most picturesque and delightful entertainments of the season.

Little Miss Bressler Celebrates Birthday.

Mc and Mrs. Ben Bressler entertained Wednesday at a children's party at their home on East Seventeenth street, in compliment to their little daughter, Irma Harriet Bressler, celebrating her third birthday. During the afternoon games were enjoyed by the little guests and prizes awarded.

Little Miss Bressler was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Ben Bressler, and aunt, Mrs. Herman J. Jacobson.

Mrs. John Montgomery Is Guest of Mrs. Argo.

Mrs. John Montgomery, of Riverside, Conn., and New York, the guest of Mrs. Robert Argo, was the honor guest at a bridge party Friday afternoon given by Mrs. Argo at the Druid Hills Golf club. Forty guests were present.

Mrs. Mark Cooper Pope entertained at luncheon Friday at the "Vanity Fair" tea room in honor of Mrs. Montgomery. The guests included a few close friends of the hostess and her mother.

Randolph - Macon And Agnes Scott Graduates Honored

Miss Mary Bullock Smith will entertain at a tea Friday, May 27, at her home on East Pace's Ferry road in honor of a group of friends who are graduating from Agnes Scott and Randolph-Macon colleges. The honor guests are Miss Louise Plum, of Augusta; Miss Emily Daughtry, of Jackson; Miss Edith Strickland, of Concord; Miss Emily Stead, of Decatur; Misses Eugenia Dozier, Emily Nelson, Ruth McDonald, Dorothy Slippy and Constance Spaulding, of Atlanta.

Children's Matinee Is Announced.

Highland school pupils are eager to see the prize-winning play to be put on by the pupils of Highland school fourth grade, at the children's Saturday morning matinee this week at the Howard theater. This was also one of the nine plays chosen from the entire school system to be given at the Mayfair this week. The box office will be open at 8:30, the program starts at 9:30 and the admission is 10 cents for children and 25 cents for adults.

To add to the enjoyment Saturday is a "Buster Brown" comedy, in which Buster will show how "Buster Helps Dad." Of course, Tige will help also, and this number will prove especially pleasing to Atlanta's youngest set.

The Cinderella picture, with Colleen Moore, will draw a large crowd Saturday and is repeated by request, since at its last performance at the matinee hundreds of children were unable to gain admittance on account of the large audience.

Mrs. Frank McCormack, better films president, will have charge of the program.

Seminary Alumnae To Honor Seniors.

The initial event of the Washington seminary commencement will be the lawn party to be given by the alumnae in honor of the senior class on Saturday, May 21, from 5 to 7 o'clock.

The officers of the alumnae will receive with the graduates. Other guests will be the parents of the seniors and the young men from the G. M. I. who so graciously furnished the music for the field day of the seminary.

No invitations have been issued but every former student of the school is expected in her capacity as hostess as well as to embrace this delightful opportunity of renewing old friendships.

La Fontaine Dancers To Present Revue At Woman's Club

The annual revue of the La Fontaine School of Dancing will be held this afternoon in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's Club.

An outstanding feature will be the karpis wedding, which will be presented by the very young children in the school. The bride will be attended by eight little bridesmaids, groomsmen, flower girls, ribbon bearers, and every appointment of a real wedding will be carried out in detail. An unusual number will be the pony ballet, which will be given by the more advanced pupils of the school, and unique costumes have been prepared for this number.

A entry box of sweets with the children representing almost every conceivable variety of candy will be most interesting. There will also be solos, baby bathing beauties, Grecian fantasies, cupids, oriental numbers, minuets, lullabies, bunnies, acrobatic specialties and many other interesting numbers.

A number of box parties have been planned for the afternoon and Mrs. Price-Smith, president of the club, will entertain the officers of the past year as well as the newly elected officers. The public welfare committee, with Mrs. George Ripley, Jr., as chairman, is sponsoring this event, and the admission will be 50 cents. The program will begin promptly at 3 o'clock.

Miss Ashcraft Honors Miss Maclean.

Complimenting Mrs. Charles Maclean, of Savannah, Miss Rebecca Ashcraft entertained with a seated luncheon Friday afternoon at the Piedmont Driving Club.

CHILDREN GET INTO PRINT WITH NEW PRINTED FROCKS

Dainty New Designs for Summer, Dressy for Wear and Most Economical and Serviceable. Mother's Approval Genuine!

Children, as well as grown-ups, grasp the opportunity of "getting into print," and right now the desire is greater, probably, than ever before. Spring and summer styles this year have been especially favorable to the printed fabrics, whether silk or cotton fabrics.

Children of all ages, from infancy to the adolescence, have been provided for in our Children's Section with the very latest styles the fashion designers have evolved. They are styles that appeal to every child's taste, and at prices that are attractive to mother, whether she must practice thrift and economy or is privileged to spend as her desires may dictate.

Wash dresses of the most beautiful printed patterns, done in all the newest absolute fast colors of the season. They are dresses that are dressy, and yet serviceable because they are washable and of best quality materials.

Bring the children to Keely's today and let them "get into print."

With vacation just ahead, and the probability of an outing trip, parents could do worse than have the children vaccinated or take other precautionary measures for health's sake.

M. O. DUNNING NAMED GAME AND FISH CHIEF

M. O. Dunning, of Savannah, was elected chairman of the state board of game and fish at the annual session of that body held at the capitol Friday. Dunning succeeds the late James H. Dozier.

The annual report of Peter S. Twitty, state game and fish commissioner, containing his recommendations for the work of the board and department during the year, was submitted. Commissioner Twitty announced that he had recently distributed 6,000 Mexican quail throughout Georgia on a cooperative purchase plan adopted several months ago. About 150,000 acres of land have been closed against quail hunting to provide sanctuaries for the birds. The owners of the land on which the quail are liberated have agreed to prohibit hunting on this land until November 20, 1930.

PLAN 18-HOLE COURSE FOR PIEDMONT PARK

Plans looking towards establishment of an 18-hole golf course at Piedmont park by utilization of 45 acres of "wild land" in the northern end of the park, were disclosed Friday by John A. White, chairman of the park committee of city council. The project could be pushed to completion at an estimated cost of $250,000, and the finance committee will be asked to carry an appropriation for this purpose in the June finance bill, which will be made next week.

Councilman Frank Reynolds introduced a resolution at the last meeting of city council asking a special committee to work plans for the construction of an 18-hole course. He stated Friday that Atlanta should have two 18-hole municipal courses, and that he would seek to get council to authorize location of another in the western section of the city.

Oklahoma Judge, Native Georgian, Visits Old Home

BY HERB MUCKER.

Abandoning for a brief period his duties as chief justice of a great state, Judge Fred P. Branson, head of the supreme court of Oklahoma and native of Rockmart, Ga., on Friday passed through Atlanta after making a pilgrimage to the grave of his mother and the home of his birth.

Chief Justice Branson made a special trip from Washington, D. C., to Rockmart. At the capital he participated in a convention held by the American Law Institute for the purpose of issuing a restatement of the common law, with the end in view of bringing about uniformity of the country's law.

While in this section, Judge Branson visited his sister, Mrs. N. M. Adams, of Cartersville, Ga., and a brother, T. J. Branson, of Barnesville, Ga. In Atlanta he visited a number of acquaintances; then departed for Oklahoma City.

Judge Branson was born in Rockmart and graduated at Mercer university in 1892. That fall he journeyed to what then was Indian Territory and began the practice of law. At once he became identified with territorial activities and was a member of the first state legislature in 1907 when the territory was admitted to the union. He served for a time as prosecuting attorney in Muskogee and later became judge of the district court at that city, which office corresponds with that of superior court judge here.

Judge Branson was a member of the Oklahoma delegation which assisted at the 1912 democratic national convention in breaking the deadlock between Woodrow Wilson and Champ Clark and which resulted to the nomination of the late war president. In 1922, Judge Branson was elected to the supreme court, in which body he has since served.

It was Judge Branson who wrote the now famous "three opinions" by provision of which the Oklahoma state legislature went into extra session for "immemorial purposes" and virtually ousted the then governor, "Jack" Walton, from office. Judge Branson also wrote the opinion which made it possible for the then Lieutenant Governor Trapp to succeed Walton as chief executive of the state.

NORTH SIDERS MEET ON CITY ANNEXATION

An open discussion by property owners on the north side of Atlanta will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the Hope school on Piedmont road to determine whether or not the majority want that section to be taken into the corporate limits of the city of Atlanta. The meeting is sponsored by the Peachtree Hills Improvement club and every property owner in that section of the city is urged to be present.

Women Secure

against lost charm, this new way of solving oldest hygienic problem—offers true protection; discards like tissue

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

SHEER gowns and ill-timed social or business demands hold no terror for the modern woman. The insecurity of the old-time "sanitary pad" has been ended.

"KOTEX," a new and remarkable way, is now used by 8 in 10 better class women. It's five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads!

You dine, dance, motor for hours in sheerest frocks without a second's doubt or fear.

It deodorizes, too. And thus stops all danger of offending.

Discards like tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You ask for it at any drug or department store, without hesitancy, simply by saying "KOTEX." Be sure to get the genuine.

Do as millions are doing. End old, insecure ways. Enjoy life every day. Only Kotex is "like" Kotex.

FRIDAY HOTTEST

DAY FOR ATLANTA

SINCE YEAR BEGAN

There is a strong likelihood of light thunder showers during the late afternoon and night, which should bring cooler air.

The temperatures Friday began at a low mark of 68 in the early morning. Atlanta enjoyed the highest temperature of the year to date, when the mercury rose to 85 degrees, according to C. F. von Herrmann, local official meteorologist.

Another hot day is in store for today according to Mr. von Herrmann, but it is not expected to reach the 85 degree mark.

ASA G. CANDLER, SR.,

REPORTED BETTER

Asa G. Candler, Sr., who has been confined to the Wesley Memorial hospital for nearly a year, was reported to be much better Friday and attended the physicians stated that he will be able to sit up during the next few days.

His condition has shown a steady improvement during the past few days and only recently his bed has been moved to the roof garden, where he remained for hours at a time.

NEED FOR INCREASED HEALTH FUND SHOWN

Increased support for the state department of health, asked for the next two years, is necessary to operate the sanatorium for tuberculars at full capacity; to enlarge and maintain the training school for mental defectives, and to support public health work against typhoid, malaria and other preventable diseases in counties too small to maintain their own county health departments under the Ellis health law. It was stated Friday by Dr. T. F. Abernethy, secretary of the state health board.

The present appropriation for the tuberculosis sanatorium is sufficient for only 100 patients although the new sanatorium opened in March provided 240 beds. Nearly 200 sufferers who are entitled to treatment at the sanatorium have been refused admission because the present funds are not enough to provide for them in the hospital, said Dr. Abernethy.

Georgia's annual death toll from tuberculosis is 2,676, which, under standard of the National Tuberculosis Association should be the number of beds available for tubercular patients. The state provides 100 and all other city and county institutions in the state bring the total to 363, one-third of the normal need.

The school for feeble-minded children at Greenwood now has a capacity of 90 with a waiting list of approximately 1,200 for whom neither buildings nor maintenance funds are available. The average institutional provision for training of feeble-minded persons in the United States is 28 for each 100,000 of population as compared to three in Georgia at present and 10 per 100,000 if the funds requested are appropriated.

Public health work at present is organized actively in only 26 counties, under the Ellis health law, the majority of counties being too small to support county health officers. Additional funds have been asked in the state department's budget to support the work in smaller counties, which have not made progress in combating malaria, typhoid and other preventable diseases.

ASSISTANT CHIEF HAS CLOSE SHAVE IN HOUSE BLAZE

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed one house and damaged two others in Smith Bottom Friday.

Assistant Fire Chief Tas Short narrowly escaped serious injury when he leaped from a second-story window of a house on Smith Bottom Friday morning, after a fire of undetermined origin had broken out in the building. The fire, which started in the kitchen, spread rapidly and threatened the two adjacent houses. Chief Short, who was on duty at the time, saw the fire and rushed to the scene. He found the fire had gained considerable headway and he leaped from the window to escape. He was injured but not seriously. The fire was extinguished by the fire department. The house was destroyed and the two adjacent houses were damaged.

NEW CREMATORY UNIT SOUGHT BY RAGSDALE

Mayor I. N. Ragdsdale announced Friday that he will seek to have adequate funds included in the June finance bill to begin work at once on another unit of the city crematory which will have a disposal capacity of 100 tons a day. The mayor said he would do this in an attempt to provide disposal facilities for the city when it reaches a population of 500,000, and to avert any possible congestion of the present unit this summer, when garbage is heaviest.

PAPER EVIDENCE OFFERED IN CASE INVOLVING STOCK

A mass of documentary evidence was presented in United States district court here Friday by attorneys for Mrs. Jessie Morton Wilkins, wife of John J. Wilkins, former president of the American State bank of Athens, which failed, in Mrs. Wilkins' suit to establish her ownership of securities levied against by creditors of Mr. Wilkins.

American Legion membership in Atlanta went to 1,277 on the report of the "mop-up" squads made at the weekly luncheon Friday, with Charlie DuPre, 62; Dr. R. C. Ewe, 57, and Dr. G. E. Everdon, 62, leading in individual enrollment of members.

SCHOOL CHILDREN HURT BY AUTOISTS

Two children were injured by automobiles while on their way to school early Friday morning, according to police records. Neither of the youngsters was badly hurt, according to hospital reports.

Thousands See B.T. Washington Statue Unveiled

Before the upturned eyes of thousands of members of his race, inspiring negro boys and girls to follow his precept and serve humanity, a heroic bronze statue of Booker T. Washington, great educator and advocate of inter-racial justice, was unveiled Friday afternoon in front of the high school that bears his name in West End.

Appropriate ceremonies attended presentation of the bronze statue to the city of Atlanta, the monument which is a replica of the one at Tuskegee institute, being the first erected to a negro on public property in this country, the Alabama monument being on private grounds. Denda Young, successful contestant among the high school students for the honor, unveiled the bronze figure.

High tribute was paid to Booker T. Washington by both white and negro speakers. Dr. Philip Durham, of Emory university, spoke of the story of Booker Washington as the "saga of the negro race, which will take its place among the stories a thousand years from now to be the subject of the dreams and annals of mankind." Dr. Durham traced the rise of the negro educator from the cabin of slavery to the "palace of the princes of soul."

Booker T. Washington does not belong to the negro race, but does belong to the human race, declared Dr. J. W. E. Bowen, traveling representative of Gammon Theological seminary, of Atlanta. Stating that he was not a student of the seminary, but with the way his toes are pointing Dr. Bowen said that it takes slavery to teach obedience to law.

The crowd now to be the subject of the board of education by C. L. Harper, principal of the high school, and was accepted by Dr. R. M. Eubanks, president of the board of education.

The negro national anthem, "America the Beautiful," "Great Day the Righteous is Marching," and "How Firm a Foundation" were sung by a great choir of student voices led by Kemper Harold, the high school's director of music. The school exercises conducted by E. M. Armstrong. Dr. Harper, as principal, was master of ceremonies.

PROFESSOR E. T. WARE DIES IN CALIFORNIA

News of the death of E. T. Ware, former president of Atlanta university for 12 years, who died Thursday at Claremont, Calif., has been received here.

Professor Ware was a native of Atlanta. After receiving his early education here he entered Yale and graduated in 1897. He later went to the Union Theological seminary in New York and completed a course there in 1901.

In 1901 he came to Atlanta and was made chaplain of Atlanta university. He served in that capacity for six years before being made president in 1907. He retired in 1919 due to failing health, and after residing in sanatoriums in New York and Colorado, went to the west coast.

DIES IN ELEVATOR, LAST RITES TODAY FOR J. S. ARNETT

Funeral services for J. S. Arnett, of 1644 DeKalb avenue, an employee of the Candler building who was killed in an elevator of the building and fell against a door the car was passing, will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the Edgewood Baptist church. The Rev. L. B. Cranford will officiate and the body will be taken Sunday morning to Harlem, Ga., for interment.

Fifty Thousand Paid on Policies Of Constitution

Fifty thousand dollars is a lot of money—particularly when one has been injured in an accident and medical and other bills are heavy. More than this big sum has been paid by the North American Insurance Company of Chicago on claims of holders of The Constitution's famous $7,500 travel accident insurance policies.

You, too, may be left maimed or dead by an accident today. How would your family be if this should happen?

Spend $1.25 today to assure yourself against an abrupt halt in income and to safeguard the comfort of the loved ones dependent upon you. For this insignificant sum The Constitution tenders you the $7,500 travel accident policy, which provides for payment of sums ranging downward from $7,500 in case of death resulting from certain accidents; heavy cash sums for permanent injuries; and $10 weekly indemnity for disability resulting from the specified mishaps.

Don't take chances with your own welfare and the happiness of your family. A train wreck, a crash of cars, the crushing wheels of a speeding automobile or a burning building may leave you a victim of the accident wave today.

New York, May 20. —(By the Associated Press.)—Except for a brief flurry of selling in a few railroad shares, the stock market today disregarded the interstate commerce commission rejection of the proposed Looze merger in the southwest and moved into new high ground to the accompaniment of spectacular advances in many of the leading industrial specialties. Total sales ran around two and one-half million shares.

Early reactions of 3 to nearly 6 1/2 points in the railroad shares and 1 to 2 points in the industrial specialties were followed by a sharp drop in the roads affected by the merger decision, and closed at 53. St. Louis Southwestern rallied from a low of 71-1/4 to 73-3/8. "Katy" common opened at 73-1/2, closed at 74-1/2 and then settled back to 41-1/8. On the other hand, New York Central, Union Pacific, Rock Island, Baltimore & Ohio, Pittsburgh & West Virginia and a few others reached their highest prices in the year.

Laclede Gas soared 21 points to a new peak at 265, or nearly 90 points above its low of 175 in 1929. It was the top. Commercial Solvents B jumped over 17 points to 378-1/4 and Consolidated Threshing Machine nearly 10 points to 100-1/2. The new high of 100 points was also reached by C. & G. Gas, Continental Insurance, Houston but good buying support was quickly forthcoming, and the losses were cut in half before the session was an hour old. While "bear" traders undoubtedly were active, the market's selling was believed to represent liquidation by nervous investors and speculators who recalled that it was an adverse I. C. C. decision in the "Nickel

Oil, International Cement, International Harvester, Liggett & Myers, and Timken Roller Bearing climbed 4 to 5 points, all to new peak prices. American Smelting, Woolworth, C. I. Lins & Aikman, American Tobacco, Christie Brown and Gold Dust were among the more than two-score other new highs.

Speculators for the advance were not disposed, however, to relinquish control of the price movement, and they started to bid up prices from the outset, centering their efforts, at first in the so-called "blue chip" issues of all money in the 44 cents, with a substantial amount of funds offered at that figure, and the publication of optimistic business forecasts by steel executive attending the semi-annual meeting of the American Iron & Steel Institute, which accelerated the buying movement, which was organized practically all group of stocks.

The violence of the advance in the portance. Cotton and coffee closed high priced specialties, many of which slightly lower, and sugar prices were soared 5 to 15 points, naturally re-firmer.

LAST RITES SUNDAY FOR L. C. MATTHEWS

Funeral services for Levin Clay Matthews, 60, widely known Atlanta accountant, who died Friday at the residence on Fairview road, will be held at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon from the residence, Dr. C. W. Daniel will officiate and interment will be in West View cemetery.

Mr. Matthews was born near Sand Springs, Washington county, during 1867 and received his early training in public and private schools of Washington and Butts counties, later graduating from the Virginia Military Institute with the class of 1889.

The following year he married Miss Mary Lucy Watson, daughter of Captain and Mrs. L. D. Watson, of Jackson, Ga. As an agent at Rome, Ga., he began his business career with the Central of Georgia railroad, and later became traveling auditor with this company, and the Ocean Steamship company.

After serving in this capacity for a number of years, Mr. Matthews went to New York city as general auditor with the Atlantic Compress company and afterwards became manager of the Audit company, of New York.

On his return to Atlanta Mr. Matthews served as principal accountant with the Alonzo Richardson company, and was for several years manager of the local office of Haskins & Sells, certified public accountants, of New York. His last connection was as manager of the Atlanta branch of P. J. Marwick, Mitchell & Co.

Mr. Matthews was a member of the F. B. Baptist church. He was also a Shrine, Knight Templar and a member of the Gate City lodge of Atlanta Masons.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Wallace P. Zachary, of New York city, and two sons, William Clayton Matthews and Douglas William Matthews.
